Astrology and What it Means when Dating

It's been a joke for many years, the pickup line "What's your sign", but to some it isn't a joke at all and they take it very seriously when it comes to finding a life partner.

Astrology is much more complicated than simple sun signs. Other planetary influences have a great deal to do with what makes up a person.

But star signs are the single most determinant facet of the astrological chart. They paint, in broad strokes, a person's personality. They determine whether the person wants to chase or be chased, whether they will open their soul to you or keep it close to the vest. You'll find some star signs tend to like art museums while others like kayaking more.

If you are at a critical juncture at your life, you may find that a man of a certain sign might fit your current situation better than others. If you are looking for a rebound relationship, an Aquarius man is just right for you, for instance. But, that would be a bad choice if you are ready to settle down.

Keep in mind too that your sign is an important component to the relationship. A Taurus woman is the perfect complement for some signs and toxic for others.

If you are looking for your perfect match, this guide will give you a broad outline of the kinds of men found under each star sign.

Aries

Aries is the sign of the Ram. Aries are born between March 22 and April 21.

An Aries man believes in love at first sight. Once he has his eyes on you, he will stop at nothing to get you. The chase is part of the attraction, so don't be too easy to get right away. He loves what he can't get. He also loves to win and loves winners. He is especially drawn to witty, independent women.

The Aries man wants a woman to flatter his ego. But, be careful not to overdo it as this can have the opposite effect of what you want. Try to always be dynamic and straightforward.

Once you've landed your Aries man, you will find that your relationship is an adventure. One person described dating an Aries man as "playing bowling with grenades."

Aries men are very generous with their time and money. This kind of generosity is rare these days. You'll probably never have to pick up a check when dating an Aries man. You will also find yourself on the receiving end of many gifts.

When an Aries man loves you, he really loves you. It's not ambiguous. It is a fierce and fiery hot passion.

He will tend to be somewhat idealistic. You may find him overly so at times. He wants to be the Romeo to your Juliet which can make you exhausted. He can become quite grumpy if he feels like you are not living up to his idealistic view of you.

Aries men tend to love their freedom. They will also allow you to have yours. Possessive women tend to have problems with Aries men. But you don't have to worry about his loyalty.

To keep an Aries man, you have to be a constant challenge for him. Don't let him dominate you. Give him the thrill of having to try all of the time.

Conclusion

"What's Your Sign?" is actually a good question to ask when meeting a man for the first time. You can tell an awful lot about what the potential course of a relationship might look like when you determine the answer to this one question.

Are you looking for a man to shape your life (try a Scorpio) or a man's life to shape (try an Aquarius)? If you are looking to settle down and raise a life partner at this point in your life, you may find the most promise in a Taurus.

You should keep in mind that your sign has a lot to do with the success of a relationship as well. For instance, if you are a Gemini, you will probably find a great deal of happiness with another Gemini while a typical Scorpio will make your life miserable.

Also keep in mind that astrology is more complicated than sun signs. Your rising signs and the positions of the planets can be every bit as important in determining your personality.

However, very few people know what house Venus was in when they were born. They do, however, know their sun sign. This is a good place to start when determining a love match.

If you do get serious with someone and want to know what the stars have in store for you, it might be worth your while to have your full charts read together by a professional astrologer.
